MAYSVILLE WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO AND INTERURBAN WRECK

Musical Comedy Based on Newspaper Comics With Plenty of Girls' Is Attraction Here Tonight.

Mrs. Judith Rice, of Forest Avenue, died from injuries received in wreck between Georgetown and Lexington Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Judith Rice, of Forest Avenue, died Saturday afternoon from injuries received in a collision of an auto in which they were riding and an interurban car late Saturday.

The Lexington Herald tells this story of the fatal accident:

The accident occurred in front of Mrs. Nellie Stevenson's, where about twenty-five of the Stevenson family had gathered for a family reunion. Dr. Stevenson, with his wife, who was driving the car, his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Craig, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Rice, were coming to Lexington to meet an aunt, who was to be added to the family gathering.

Dr. Stevenson, who was conscious at St. Joseph's hospital when interviewed, said that his wife saw the car first, and cried out, but that they were already going too fast and were too near the track to stop safely on the closer side, and that she put on a burst of speed in an endeavor to get across in front of the approaching car. The car, which was coming down grade, was traveling at a high rate of speed, Dr. Stevenson said, and struck the rear end of the automobile before it was clear of the track.

Mrs. Rice, who was sitting on the back seat on the side nearer the interurban, was struck, and her body considerably mangled. She died on the way to St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. Craig was brought to the hospital unconscious and remained in a delirious condition until she died. Her arm was cut and she died from the effects of internal injuries.

No whistle was blown to warn the occupants of the car of the approach of the interurban, according to both Dr. Stevenson and Wallace Muir, attorney for the Kentucky Traction and Terminal Company. "There was no road crossing near the scene of the accident, and motormen are not required to blow for provate crossings," said Attorney Muir last night.

Will Farmer and Clay Taylor were conductor and motorman, respectively, of the interurban.

The injured were brought immediately to the hospital by Charles E. Stevenson, brother of Dr. Stevenson, and placed in the care of a doctor. The car in which Dr. Stevenson and his party were driving, a Ford sedan, was not much injured, the front remaining intact in almost the same spot where it was struck.

Mrs. Rice, who before her marriage was Miss Judith Amanda Coeke, was one of the most prominent women of Maysville, and was interested in many business affairs, despite her 80 years.

She was the widow of James H. Rice, and is survived by nine children, T. Jeff Rice and Judge William H. Rice, of Maysville; Frank H. Rice, of Helena; S. Jewell Rice, of Lexington; John Y. Rice, of Fayetteville, Ark.; Mrs. Edward Bullock and Mrs. Walter Worthington, of Maysville; Mrs. R. H. Stevenson and Mrs. William Walker, of Lexington; two sisters, Mrs. John M. Rosa and Mrs. Homer Black, of Liberty, Mo., and one brother, Frank Tomlinson, of Fort Worth, Texas.

The body was brought here Sunday afternoon and taken to the home in Forest avenue where the funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Services by Rev. Los of the Mayslick Christian church and Dr. John Barber of the local Presbyterian church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY DAYS.

TO THE WOMEN OF MAYSVILLE

Tomorrow, for the first time in the history of our state, the women of Kentucky are to be enrolled as American citizens, sharing with men the right of suffrage. As this is a new experience it is natural that it should be regarded by many as an ordeal from which they shrink. Kentucky women always pointed with pride to the women of Bryant's Station, who faced the arrows of Indians in order to secure water for their families. The women of today will not have to face Indian arrows but to secure pure water, or good government, she may have to face that which to many is far worse, the shafts of ridicule from the narrow-minded. But the Kentucky woman of today is no less brave than her ancestors.

You Owe It To Your Family

It's an obligation you have assumed—unconsciously, perhaps, but none the less an obligation.

You are in duty bound to foster family thrift, to teach it by example. Some portion of your income—be it ever so small—should be regularly added to a Savings Account.

The Bank-book makes a fine object lesson—the whole family can watch the balance grow.

There is no time like the present and you can open an account here with a single dollar.
